Deggi Mirch is a unique blend of Indian red chillies that imparts an attractive, natural red colour to dishes.

For best results, fry sliced onions in oil until golden. Add chopped tomatoes and Deggi mirch and stir until well-mixed with an even red colour. If you are not using tomatoes, reduce the heat, and stir in the Deggi Mirch until the onions are an even red colour. Then proceed to cook your dish as normal.

Deggi Mirch is a unique, age old blend, processed from special varieties of colourful Indian red chillies. It is mild-hot and imparts glowing natural red colour to curried dishes making them attractive and more palatable. For best results fry chopped onions in oil till golden. Then add chopped tomatoes and Deggi Mirch. Stir till it is homogenised, and imparts the red colour. Then proceed with your normal cooking. If not using tomatoes, reduce flame, add Deggi Mirch and as soon as it imparts colour, proceed further.

Ingredients : Red Chilli Powder:

Chili powder, chile powder or chilli powder (British English) is a piquant ("hot") spice made entirely or mainly from powdered hot chili peppers.

The peppers may be virtually any hot pepper including cayenne, ancho, jalapeño, New Mexico, and pasilla chilis. The piquance ("heat" or "spicyness") of the powder varies widely depending on which are used, and their proportions if several types are mixed.

In many cuisines, such as traditional Indian cuisine and in the United Kingdom, chili powder is usually simply pure powdered chili.

In other cuisines, the hot chilis may be blended with mild paprika chilis, and other ingredients are included which usually include cumin, oregano, garlic powder, and salt. Other ingredients may include black pepper, cinnamon, cloves, coriander, mace, nutmeg, and turmeric.
